Subject: Question

For the demand-side study, over 20 countries and dozens of cities have banned the sale of all internal combustion engines, some as early as 2025. It's critical that the demand-side study looks at timelines that are in line with climate science—and we encourage a pathway that looks at the 2030 date for CA to reach the sale of 100% ZEVs. Will that be part of the study?
