EXTERNAL:

I'm reaching tonight make sure the former town of Alviso is reviewed more carefully for DAC designation. This town has a large demographic of Mexican-Americans who first settled there during the Bracero movement. Many of the families in Alviso represent 4 or more generations.

Alviso has also experienced significant flooding in past years and is therefore, most certainly, a candidate for Climate Resilience. More so, there are extreme disparities between the aforementioned communities and the more affluent people who have moved in over the last decade and constructed significantly raised homes (for flood safety).
